About Thomas:

I am life long learner and self-taught web developer. I have learned from my customer service experience that not everyone is into technology, however technology plays an integral role in everyone's life. I have a passion for learning about and leveraging technology to develop solutions for all users.

I enjoy working on full stack web development, data collection and analysis, as well as artificial intelligence projects at this time.

Currently I am focusing my attention on improving my front end development skills leveraging Angular 5 and Typescript.

In my free time I am also working to develop hardware solutions to further enhance my other hobbies. I using microcontrollers such as the Arduino Uno and Expressif ESP32 to design and build hardware systems.
